Fall in Love with Tanzania

Tanzania is endowed with many natural wonders – from huge wildlife concentrations to unique scenery, from welcoming rural communities to countless multicolored birds. It is a dream destination. But more than that, wildlife conservation and sustainable tourism make Tanzania the undoubted leader in international wildlife tourism. Here there is an ever-present focus on what's suitable for the land, the birds and animals, and the rural population – which is why almost 30% of the country has been given special protection status.

Mainland Tanzania is home to 15 national parks and more than 30 game reserves. It's where you'll find a breath-taking array of spectacles:

Mt. Kilimanjaro, the tallest mountain in Africa and a challenge for intrepid trekkers; the Serengeti, where all manner of wildlife abounds, and which was recently named the new 7th Wonder of the World by USA Today and Good Morning America.

The Ngorongoro Crater – widely regarded as the 8th Wonder of the World; Olduvai Gorge, the Cradle of Mankind; Selous, the world's largest game reserve; and Ruaha, probably the most extensive of the national parks.

So, it is no surprise that Tanzania tops the list of safari destinations. Routinely, visitors can expect to encounter Tanzania's big five – Lion, Leopard, Elephant, Buffalo, and Rhinoceros – plus giraffe, hippo, antelope, monkeys, and apes... the list goes on.

In addition, Tanzania boasts some of the Indian Ocean's most beautiful beaches and off-shore islands, where soft white sand meets the sparkling azure sea. These are the destinations that divers seek out, and where sun lovers soak up the tropical atmosphere in luxurious resort hotels, beach lodges, bungalows, or hostels.

Beach Tours Zanzibar.

Ideal beaches, pleasant weather, and warm tropical waters may all be found in Zanzibar. The beautiful, warm water, coral reefs, and diverse marine life that characterize this archipelago make it an ideal snorkeling and diving destination.

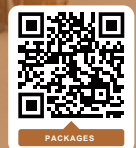

Zanzibar is difficult to top if you're looking for relaxed days on white-sand beaches. Zanzibar is the ideal beach resort, but it's also a haven for culture vultures, adventurers, and environment enthusiasts. It's popularly known as Spice Island because it cultivates and processes aromatic spices including black pepper, cloves, turmeric, cinnamon, and nutmeg.

Visit spice plantations to learn about the cultivation, history, and culinary and medicinal use of these crops. Market street food and traditionally cooked dishes can be found by following the fragrances and tasting the excellent flavor combinations.

Kilimanjaro hiking.

One of the most majestic mountains in the world is Kilimanjaro. It draws visitors with breathtaking panoramic vistas, rare vegetation, and a distinctive attitude of struggle and adventure due to its location almost exactly on the equator. Many climbers on Kilimanjaro describe their experiences as "unparalleled," "life-changing," and "transformative."

You don't need to be very fit or have prior climbing expertise to participate in a Kilimanjaro expedition, in contrast to other well-known mountains. The majority of help tours hikers' ascent of Kilimanjaro is their first significant ascent at such high altitudes, and it frequently piques their interest in mountain climbing and may even inspire them to embark on more climbing expeditions throughout the globe! It is the perfect location for beginning climbers to have a memorable off-the-beaten-path mountain summit trip.

Routes to the peak

Machame: You can choose 6 or 7 days Itinerary.

Marangu: You can choose 5 or 6 days of Itinerary

Rongai: You can choose a 5,6 or 7-day of itinerary

Lemosho: You can choose 7 or 8 days of Itinerary

Serengeti Migration

One of the most sought-after events for wildlife and nature fantastic is The Great Migration, which is the perpetual round migration of over a million animals through the Serengeti-Mara habitat. A swarm of companions joins the columns of wildebeest as they move continuously along an old trail in search of grass and water. The animals move up and around the Serengeti clockwise to the Masai Mara in Kenya after calving in the southern Serengeti close to the Ngorongoro Conservation Area. They then return toward the end of the year. Predators kill thousands of animals, and thousands more are born, replenishing the population and maintaining the cycle of life.

Cultural tour

The people of Tanzania are among the friendliest and most approachable on the planet, and they are eager to share their various and distinctive traditions with visitors. Leaving your 4X4 behind and walking through picturesque local resident villages with the best cultural landscapes in Africa is a pleasant experience. Wameru or Wachagga guides will proudly describe their carefully cultivated "shambas" with coffee, bananas, fruits, vegetables, and dairy cow farming on the lush tropical slopes of Mt. Meru and Mt. Kilimanjaro Waarusha, while the well-known and Maasai will share with you their long history as pastoralists. Meet amiable Africans and become familiar with their culture by devoting some of your time to doing so.

Walking Tours

To traverse an African bush is to get a close-up view of the continent. All of a sudden, smells are complex and varied, and every sound has meaning.

Birds and butterflies are sentient beings who should be seen and explored, not just hurried past in pursuit of the bigger prize. And when the larger animals show up, they are confronted on an equal piece of ground, at eye level. All hikes are accompanied by armed, knowledgeable guides and game rangers, so safety is never a concern. Your camp is disassembled and moved to the new place using a variety of means, including a pick-up truck, porters, or donkeys. The camping lifestyle is typically very lightweight and portable. You will journey through the African bush on foot for several days like nomads, frequently miles from any roads or pathways.
